

УДК 811.111'36(075.8)
ББК 81.432.1923.2
С322

Рецензенты:

Г. Н. Гумовская, проф., д-р филол. наук
Е. А. Никулина, проф., д-р филол. наук

Ответственный редактор:

М. Я. Блох, проф., д-р филол. наук

С322 Сергеева Ю. М. English Articles in Use.

Артикли: объяснение, употребление, тренинг. –
М.: Прометей 2012. – 204 с.

Настоящее пособие представляет собой свод основных правил употребления артиклей с различными типами имен существительных в зависимости от выполняемой ими синтаксической функции в предложении. Функционально-прагматический подход позволяет объяснить, почему тот или иной артикль требуется в конкретной коммуникативной ситуации.

Учебное пособие предназначено для студентов и преподавателей лингвистических вузов, а также для широкого круга читателей, изучающих английский язык.

ISBN 978-5-7042-2360-3

© Ю. М.Сергеева, 2012

© Издательство «Прометей», 2012

Содержание

От автора	6
Chapter 1. The article and the category of determination. Types of attributes	8
1.1. The article as a nominal determiner	8
1.2. Descriptive and limiting attributes.	8
1.2.1. Types of attributes.	8
1.2.2. Attributes expressed by adjectives	9
1.2.3. Attributes expressed by the pronoun other	11
1.2.4. Attributes expressed by numerals	12
1.2.5. Attributes expressed by nouns in the common case	13
1.2.6. Attributes expressed by nouns in the possessive case	14
1.2.7. Attributes expressed by participles	15
1.2.8. Attributes expressed by the infinitive	15
1.2.9. Attributes expressed by the gerund.	15
1.2.10. Attributes expressed by prepositional nominal phrases	16
1.2.11. Attributes expressed by subordinate clauses	18
1.3. The place of the article in a nominal phrase	19
Chapter 2. The indefinite article.	22
2.1. Forms of the indefinite article.	22
2.2. The indefinite article with common countable nouns. The functions of the indefinite article	23
2.2.1. The classifying function of the indefinite article.	23
2.2.2. The generic function of the indefinite article	24
2.2.3. The numerical function of the indefinite article.	25
2.3. The indefinite article with material nouns.	26
2.4. The indefinite article with abstract nouns	26
2.5. The indefinite article with unique objects.	28
2.6. The indefinite article with some semantic groups of nouns	28
2.6.1. The indefinite article with nouns denoting seasons.	28
2.6.2. The indefinite article with nouns denoting parts of the day.	28
2.6.3. The indefinite article with names of meals	29
2.6.4. The indefinite article with names of diseases	30
2.6.5. The indefinite article with nouns bed, school, hospital, church, prison	30
2.7. The indefinite article with proper names	31

Chapter 3. The definite article	33
3.1. The definite article with common nouns	33
3.1.1. The specifying function of the definite article	33
3.1.1.1. The limiting attribute.	34
3.1.1.2. The contextual situation	35
3.1.1.3. The definite article with unique objects	35
3.1.2. The generic function of the definite article.	36
3.1.2.1. The definite article with countable nouns	36
3.1.2.2. The definite article with collective nouns	37
3.1.2.3. The definite article with substantivized adjectives	38
3.2. The definite article with material nouns	39
3.3. The definite article with abstract nouns.	40
3.4. The definite article with some semantic groups of nouns	40
3.4.1. The definite article with nouns denoting seasons	40
3.4.2. The definite article with nouns denoting parts of the day.	41
3.4.3. The definite article with names of meals	42
3.4.4. The definite article with names of diseases	42
3.4.5. The definite article with nouns bed, school, college, university, hospital, church, prison, jail, table	42
3.4.6. The definite article with the noun sea	43
3.5. The definite article with proper names	43
3.5.1. The definite article with geographical names	43
3.5.2. The definite article with miscellaneous proper names	45
3.6. The situational use of the definite article with proper names	49
Chapter 4. The meaningful absence of the article	51
4.1. The zero article in the function of absolute generalization	51
4.2. The zero article with material nouns	51
4.3. The zero article with collective nouns	52
4.4. The zero article with abstract nouns	52
4.5. The meaningful absence of the article with some semantic groups of nouns	54
4.5.1. The zero article with nouns denoting seasons	54
4.5.2. The zero article with nouns denoting parts of the day.	54
4.5.3. The zero article with nouns denoting names of meals.	55
4.5.4. The zero article with names of diseases	56
4.5.5. The zero article with names of sciences and school subjects.	56
4.5.6. The zero article with names of sports and games	57

4.5.7. The zero article with nouns school, college, hospital, etc	57
4.5.8. The zero article with nouns town, space, society .	58
4.6. The zero article with proper names.	59
4.6.1. The zero article with geographical names	59
4.6.2. The zero article with miscellaneous proper names	60
4.6.3. The zero article with names of persons	62
4.7. Contextually bound absence of the article	63
Chapter 5. Articles with nouns in various syntactic functions . .	64
5.1. Syntactic structure and actual division of a sentence	64
5.2. Articles with nouns in the function of the subject . .	65
5.3. Articles with nouns in the predicative function . .	67
5.4. Articles with nouns in the function of an object .	70
5.5. Articles with nouns in apposition	72
5.6. Articles with nouns used as adverbial modifiers .	73
5.6.1. Articles with nouns used as an adverbial modifier of place	73
5.6.2. Articles with nouns used as an adverbial modifier of time.	75
5.6.3. Articles with nouns used as an adverbial modifier of manner	76
5.6.4. Articles with nouns used as an adverbial modifier of comparison	77
5.7. Articles with nouns used as direct address	77
5.8. Articles with nouns used as parenthesis	78
Exercises to chapter 1. Limiting and descriptive attributes . .	79
Exercises to chapters 2, 3, 4. The indefinite article.
The definite article. The zero article.	112
Exercises to chapter 5. Articles with nouns in various syntactic functions.	177
Bibliography.	203